DATA PROTECTION

Any information you insert in the following online registration pages (personal data) will be:

- retained by Demon for the purposes of providing the Demon Internet Access Services in accordance with the Demon Internet Access Services Conditions located at: <http://www.demon.net/helpdesk/producthelp/aup>; and
- sent to Apple Computer International, a company based in Cork, Republic of Ireland who may use your personal data in accordance with the Apple Customer Privacy Policy located at: <http://www.apple.com/legal/privacy>. Because Apple operates globally, the information that you provide may be sent to other Apple business units around the world, who will protect your personal information in accordance with the Apple Customer Privacy Policy. Apple may occasionally share your personal contact information with carefully selected technology companies, to keep you informed about related products and services. For example, when new software is released, Apple may work with the developer to ensure that you're aware of the latest software available for your Mac. If you do not want to receive promotional information from Apple or these technology companies, click: <http://www.apple.com/contact/myinfo> to update your personal contact preferences.

To learn how Apple handles your personal information, please visit the Apple Customer Privacy Policy at: <http://www.apple.com/legal/privacy>. This Policy explains why and how Apple collects personal information, when Apple discloses personal information, how Apple protects your personal information, how you can have access to your personal information and what to do if you do not want to receive promotional information from Apple or other carefully selected technology companies.
